Corporate brochure

November 2026

Sogda Consulting is a Swiss international consulting company. It provides specialised advisory, research and institutional support in governance, human rights, compliance and international standards, in Switzerland and abroad.

The work is founder-led. Sharof Shavkatovich Azizov, Founder and Managing Director, has more than twenty-five years of professional experience with the United Nations, the OSCE, UNDP, the ICRC, academia and civil society, including more than a decade with the Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights. That experience is brought to each new instruction.

Services

Institutional governance and reform. Human rights advisory. Rule of law and international standards. Compliance and responsible business. Strategic research and analysis. Training and institutional project support. Each assignment names the product: a note, a memorandum, a session, or a defined accompaniment.

Who the work is for International organisations, government institutions, national human rights institutions, ombudsman offices, independent oversight bodies, businesses, foundations, civil society organisations, and professional consultancy partners. These are sectors the firm can advise. They are not a client list.

How an engagement begins

An enquiry, a conversation on scope, a written proposal, and a remunerated agreement. Scope, deliverable and fee are set before the work begins.
